announces the establishment of a Summer Term. Pupils who enter this term, and afterwards leave the city for vacation, will be charged only for the time from entrance to departure. Experience teaches us that the taking of a three months' vacation seriously interferes with the progress of pupils. The number of summer students is limited, so prompt application should be made.

Miss Whaley added to the pleasure of the evening with several vocal selections, and at 11 o'clock a delicious supper was served.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

At the June meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church on Tuesday morning the subject for the day was "Africa," and a good paper was read by Mrs. Gaskins on "Robert Moffat," a Scotch missionary, who was the father-in-law of Livingston. The meeting was largely attended, Mrs. Charles R. Vance presiding.

Married in Hampton.

A very pretty and happy event transpired at the home of Captain Frank W. Guy, Hampton, Va., Tuesday afternoon, when his sister, Miss Fannie Lee Guy, became the bride of Mr. Edward T. Thomas, of Norfolk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. B. Bryan, of St. John's Episcopal Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. B. Woodfin, of the Hampton Baptist Church.

The bride was attired in a handsome tailor-made traveling suit of golden brown cloth, and carried a bouquet of roses and fern.

The best man was Mr. Henry W. Sparrow, of this city.

A reception followed the nuptials, after which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas embarked on the Bay Line steamer at Old Point.

Relatives and friends from Norfolk and Portsmouth were among the guests at the wedding.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will reside at the home of the groom, Claiborne avenue, Brambleton.

RESCUED IN MID-OCEAN

British Steamer "Iran" Picks Up Crew of Norwegian Bark.

Captain and Sixteen Sailors of the Bark

"Cleveland," Owned at Skien, Norway, Found in Distress and Brought to Norfolk—The Vessel Lost in the Atlantic.

The big British steamship Iran, which arrived at Lambert's Point yesterday afternoon from Liverpool, had on board the captain and a crew of sixteen men from a wrecked vessel. The sailors were picked up in mid-ocean, and none too soon, for they were in dire distress.

The Iran, twenty-seven days out from Liverpool (1,500 miles), and in latitude 49 north and longitude 25.58 west, sighted the Norwegian bark Cleveland flying signals of distress.

SIGHTED AT MIDNIGHT.

It was midnight when the signals were seen by the third mate of the Iran, McKegg, who was on deck watch. The Norwegian vessel signalled that the crew wanted to abandon her. The big freighter, the Iran, ran alongside of the disabled vessel, stopped engines and took the crew on board, with their personal effects.

That was on June 4th, ten days ago. Captain Winston, of the Norwegian bark, was comfortably quartered on the Iran, and was also his crew.

Upon arriving at Lambert's Point yesterday afternoon the captain and the crew came to Norfolk, where they will arrange with the Norwegian Vice Consul, Colonel William Lamb, to be sent to their home, in Skien, Norway.

SPRUNG A LEAK.

The Cleveland, bound from Southampton, England, to West Bay, sprung a leak. The crew had been twenty days at the pumps when the Ivan hove in signalling distance. It was trying times for the men, for the bark, a 2,000-ton vessel, loaded with ballast, was fast going to pieces. The men were working hard at the pumps, and hoping, though at times almost despairing, of relief. It came just in time. Before day break after the relief of the crew at midnight on June 4th, the Ivan struck a gale. It is presumed that the bark was swept to pieces by this gale.

THE HUGE STEAMER IVAN.

The Ivan is running as a Johnson liner between Liverpool and Norfolk. It is a huge vessel, immense in capacity, being, with very few exceptions, the largest thing afloat that ever put its nose in this harbor. Last night, loaded with pig iron for Liverpool, it will also carry grain from the N. & W. elevator.

The Ivan is 478 feet long. Captain Jacobus is in command. Its officer, Captain Perberthy, told a Virginian-Pilot reporter about picking up the Norwegian crew last night at Lambert's Point. He said the captain and crew were grateful beyond measure for their relief. The officers of the ill-fated vessel will surely remember in some fitting way these of the Ivan.

The Cleveland was owned in Skien, Norway. Not all of her crew were Norwegians, several nationalities being represented.

REV. JAS. CANNON, JR.

Preached at Epworth Methodist Church Sunday.

His Subject at Night Was "How to be Good Christians in the World"—An Able and Practical Discourse.

The pulpit of Epworth church was filled on Sunday at both services by Rev. James Cannon, Jr., Principal of Blackstone Female Institute. The evening sermon was based on two texts: Mark 5: 19; "Go home to thy friends and tell them what great things the Lord hath done for thee," and John 17: 15, "I pray not that Thou shouldst keep them from the evil." The subject of the discourse was "How to be a good Christian in the world." The remarks were in part:

There is much talk among truly good people that the pew can not be expected to be as good as the pulpit; that business men cannot be as good as monks, and nuns, and persons whose time is altogether given up to the administration of the church and its organized societies. And the question is honestly asked, "Can a man be a first-class business man and live in the stormy centers of business life and yet be as earnest, faithful and devoted a Christian as the pastor of the church to which he belongs?"

To all such questions there can be but one answer: He certainly can. The Bible gives no different standard. The law is the same for both. Our Lord speaks on this matter with no uncertain sound. The Man of Gadara had been saved by Christ; he was grateful; he longed to go with the Master; he besought Him that he might do so. The people among whom he lived were so wicked that despite the wondrous miracle they begged Christ to leave this country. They loved him more than Christ. Surely Jesus would let the man go. But he suffered him not, "Go home to thy friends and tell them what great things the Lord hath done for thee," and also with the disciples.

They expected to be with Him, but He left them in the world and prayed the Father not that they should be taken out of the world, but kept from the evil. This action of Christ shows that He did not think that there was any disadvantage from being obliged to live in this sinful world. There is nothing in the teachings of Christ which urges people to live in convents or nunneries, or a cloistered sanctity to such a life. There is nothing in His teaching which intimates that it is necessary for a man to be a poor business man, or a woman a poor house-keeper in order to be a good Christian. The same Bible which says "Be ye holy," says also, "Not slothful in business." There is no piety in poverty, or in ignorance, and the Gospel calls us to be as good as any man for shiftlessness or sloth in business affairs.

On the contrary the teaching of Christ is that we are put into the world and left in the world purposely by God in order that His great plans for us and for the world may be developed.

The great trouble is that we divide our lives. We have not two lives, but a life; not a secular life and a pious life, but one spiritual life. This spiritual life has two parts: the practical and the devotional, and both are necessary to develop the well-rounded man. An act may be practical, it may be devotional, but in either case it must be spiritual. To the real Christian the spiritual life includes every action of the life. There are, therefore, two reasons why we are left in the world: (1) That we may develop character by contact with trial. From Adam and Eve down this has been God's method. Trial is necessary for a holy character. No man can be created holy. He may be created innocent and pure, but holiness must be the result of trial, the result of the practice of goodness or virtue. Shall we complain then at the hardness of our lot, or compare our trials with those of others? Do we have frets and worries and temptations and responsibilities, and burdens and afflictions? Shall we therefore say we can not be expected to do right always because of these things? Surely not. These very things are our opportunities to win glorious victories. God expects us to overcome, and after the heat of the fire is over to be the purest gold. By our contact with the world we are to develop character.

(2) Our practical life is our point of contact with the world, and there we must win the world for Christ. But here the same strange idea. My practical business life is one thing, and there I follow out the laws of the business world. I can not win the world by my business life. To do this I must go to church and pray and sing. No spiritual result from every-day practical business life, but great results from the church-going, singing and praying. There is as much reason to say that life-action will not influence men, but dreams will. How are we to bring the world to Christ? Vague ideas because vague ideas of the world. We must convert the world man by man, not by the mass, and our point of contact with the part next us is our practical every-day life. Men know of our spirituality only by contact, and whatever we obtain by our devotion must be given to men practically. Here are merchants, shoemakers, clerks, etc. Practical life is merchandising, shoe-making, etc. Christ says, the world needs shoes and clothes, etc. Have you these to furnish them? Your point of contact with men is your business. "Are you like the world then?" Do you practice the laws of the trade, drive sharp bargains, etc.? Are you selfish, high-tempered, deceitful, lacking in moral courage? You need not talk religion; you need not sing and pray and exhort in revivals. Men will cry, "Away with him. If he has religion I don't want it. Where his life touched mine it was like the world. His all was war, part cotton; his sweater was vile, etc." My brethren, the place to save this city is not in this church with fine singing, fervent prayer and eloquent preaching. The place to save this city is down town, in stores and shops and homes, on the streets, at home and in society. If you fail to touch men there your lives will be failures. If you are honest, courageous, pure, loving, down-town, at home, in society, then when you come to church the life on the street will follow you, and as the ungodly man

Ladies' Muslin Underwear

—AT—

WHOLESALE PRICES.

In the effort to supply the demands for Muslin Underwear, we have attained results that are, in their way, quite remarkable. If you were here Monday or Tuesday you know what a lively time we had, even with the assistance of extra salespeople and extra space to wait on the crowds that came. It was way beyond our expectations. Two days of unprecedented selling at our Muslin Underwear Department. If you were here yesterday you saw the third day of this June Sale start off with manifestations that seem to justify the belief that we are going to accomplish even greater things.

For all this we must give credit to the garments themselves. Most clearly they are of good quality—properly designed—amply shaped—daintily sewed—trimmed and finished with extreme nicety—and priced at wholesale. Prices quoted are not for one day. Prices advertised are the same when the selling began and are still available.

Qualities and Values of the Foremost and Best Character.

The Big Store's great stock consists of anything and everything that good taste, reasonable demands and reasonable expenditure could ask, expect or obtain in Spring and Summer wearables for Men, Boy or Child—even such a comprehensive statement is susceptible of immediate and satisfactory proof when there is confronted for examination and appreciation such an abundance of the various departments in the two big buildings—quality here ever governs and controls the purchasing value—and, in turn, regulates and becomes the ruling incentive for worth in selling—there is one thing absolutely certain when the quality is equal elsewhere the price is higher—when the price is equal the quality is lower—it pays to trade directly with the makers—secure better value—save middlemen's margins—get better service—better workmanship—better results and better all round returns than can be had from any other source.

Better Goods for Same Money—

Same Goods for Less Money.

$9.85 When qualities are similar elsewhere prices are higher—when prices are similar qualities are lower—that's the substance that confronts the situation regarding the goods on sale here—people that have scanned the market closely—people that know real worth and value—those that have sought to make their money secure the best possible power that their judgment would guide—have bought these Nine Eighty-five Special Value Bargain Suits for Men and Young Men, saying that they are the best and biggest values yet offered—there is nothing necessary to say in this connection except this: That these Suits, by reason of an extensive business which has been transacted since the first day the sale had been put into active operation, will naturally dwindle in sales, and the best opportunities for a more satisfactory selection is lost unless an immediate or prompt response is made; and, moreover, we can unhesitatingly say there never were and probably never will be again such extraordinary quotations made on such good Suits, or such low figures as Nine Eighty-five.
